Canadian actress Sarah Gadon (Siblings, Fast Food High) has been cast in the key role of Sabina opposite Armin Muller Stahl in the forthcoming Where Love Reigns, a drama about psychoanalyst Carl Jung.

The film, which is to be executive produced by Martin Scorsese, is sold internationally by Australian seller Becker Films International, headed by Reiko Bradley.

It is a psychodrama centring on the passionate and forbidden love affair between Sabina Spielrein and Carl Jung. Already cast as Jung is Scottish actor Douglas Henshall (The Lawless Heart, Angels And Insects) and Simon Callow as Jung's colleague Dr Eugene Bleuler. South African actress Nathalie Boltz (The Poseidon Adventure, Platinum) will play Emma Jung.

The film is to be directed by newcomer David Ness from a screenplay by UK author and playwright Snoo Wilson, based on his original stage play Sabina. Structured as an official UK-South African-Canadian co-production, the film is set to start production on Feb 14, 2005 in the UK and South Africa.

Also on Becker's sales slate are:

- Mary McGuckian's a contemporary urban satire Rag Tale, starring Rupert Graves, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Kerry Fox, Malcolm McDowell, Ian Hart, Simon Callow and Lucy Davis;
- Puppy, an Australian drama directed by short filmmaker Kieran Galvin;
- Five Worlds, a set of eclectic human stories from five of the Islamic world's most influential and highly regarded directors, produced by the Osama producing team of Julia Fraser, Julie LeBrocq and Siddiq Barmak;
- and Marigold, a Hollywood/Bollywood romantic comedy starring Ali Larter and Bollywood superstar Salman Khan.
